Seemingly important updates are presented at the end of the chapter, which turns out to be. 773 S.W.2d 79 (1989) Gary Wayne PEARCE, Appellant, v. The STATE of Texas, Appellee. No. 10-89-021-CR. Court of Appeals of Texas, Waco. June 22, 1989. *80 Glen C. Wright, San Angelo, for appellant. Gene Spivey, Dist. Atty., San Angelo, for appellee. Before THOMAS, C.J., and CUMMINGS and BURDOCK, JJ. OPINION CUMMINGS, Justice. A jury found Appellant, Gary Wayne Pearce, guilty of murder and assessed his punishment at sixty-five years confinement. Appellant's sole ground of error is that the trial court erred in denying his motion for continuance. We affirm. Appellant was indicted for the murder of his wife, Pamela. He retained two attorneys to represent him on September 28, 1988. They had entered an appearance by filing an answer on August 11, 1988, which admitted Appellant's culpability in the death of his wife but claimed "insanity". On September 26, 1988, Appellant's counsel filed a motion for discovery and a motion for psychological examination. The record is unclear as to when these motions were to be ruled on. On the day of trial, October

27, 1988, Appellant's counsel filed an unsworn letter requesting a continuance for thirty days in order to obtain a defense expert. Appellant's counsel alleged that he needed the expert to evaluate whether to pursue the insanity defense. The trial court found that Appellant's counsel had been retained on September 28, 1988, and ordered a hearing on the motion. The State called Appellant's counsel to testify. Appellant's counsel testified that he knew of Appellant's complaint that his wife had poisoned his food. He did not recall any statements by Appellant about having been poisoned. He did not remember Appellant's medical records, but he had a copy of them. He did not have a report from a psychiatrist regarding Appellant. He had not talked to Appellant's psychiatrist since he had been employed by App 82157476af
